LOSS ABOUT FIVE MILLIONS.

Just When All Buman Effort Was Changed and the Cuy Was Saved.

The Worst Since 1872.

However, Nov. 28.—[Special Telegram to Tus Hes;...—Thanksgiving has been ushered in Boston by the greatest fire since the calamity of 1870.

It began at $115 a.m. and by noon had burnt over twenty acres in the heart of the city, entailing a loss of $5,000,000.

The fire limit is bounded by Harrison avenue on the cast, the rear of Washington on the west, and Summor street and Essex on the west, and Summer street and Essex on ne north and south... It first broke out in the big dry goods house of Brown, Durrell & Company by a badly connected electric light wire and had unfore it showed, for whea the alarm was first sounded the whole rear portion was in flames. The building was a massive brown stone structure six stories high. The first two floors were jammed with dry goods and the second floor was occupied by the Woonsecket Rubber company. The top floor was used as a store room by Jordan, Marsh & Company.

socket Rubber company. The top floor was used as a store room by Jordan, Marsh & Company.

The second, third, fourth and general alarms were sounded one after another and inside of forty minutes thirty-eight steam and the conflagration, but this deligne, combined with a pouring rain, bad in a effect, and the fire leaping across narrow Kingston atreet seized upon the five-story brick hat factory of Lamson & Hubbard, No. 20 Bedford street, and the six story brownstone building of Taylor Brothers, wholesale clothiers, cutting off the firemen. They hastily beat a retreat leaving engines Nos. 6, 7 and 9 and Hays truck No. 14 to their fate. A lot of new, deeplies the furnee around them, pulled snemical engine No. 2 out of dancer, while three streams of water played on them to keep them from reasting.

Seeing the whole two blocks between Harrison avenue and Channey street were bound to go, Chief Webber sent calls for and from Lynn, Salem, Laurence, Lowell, Worcester and all the suburban towns. The various railreads were hurriedly cleared, and by 11 o'clock the fire engines began to arrive in town, the mob of people who filled the streets choering them listily.

By this time the entire town was alarmed, and business am came rushing frantically to their offices, only to be turned out of dauger by the police. Many wept, swore and begged frantically to be allowed to get at their books, but they were kept from the crashing walls and flying states. Nothing Whatever of the contents of the building was saved, for the fire spread rapidly. By II o'clock the fire had ensurided all the buildings between Harrison and Chauncey and Sumner and Essex streets, when fortunately the strong southeast wind which had been prevailing, driving the fire into the heart of the city, shifted to the west and blew the fire back over the burnt section saving Boston.

The casualties were happily few, two laadermon being the only ones injured from agas explosion, which cut his hear nearly off. After crossing Chauncey street the wind changing enabled the firemen to halt it, but by this time no less than 100 of the directions ensures.

It was in the heart of the woolen and linen district, many of the bundings being the agencies and warehouses of the big New England mills, and they had just got in their winter stock. The loss at moon is roughly estimated at $15,005,000, but no moo of the insurance can be obtained. It is thought it will be about two thirds. The residence section being spared, there was an absence of those scenes which make a city fire so appailing. By moon the fire was under centrol, and fifty engines were keeping it at hay.

A Later Account.

Boston, Nov. 28.—The most disastrous fire from which Boston has suffered since 1872, and one in which the property loss rivals the great conflagration at Lynn Tuesday, proke out about 8:20 a.m. today in a six-story granite outlding owned by Jordan, Marsh & Company, and occupied by Browe, Durell & Company, dry goods, Hedford street, corner of Kingston.

The Great Fire of 1872.

The former great conflagration which swent over part of the area of the present fire commenced at 7 cleach Saturday evening. November 9, 1872, reged all night and the greater part of Sunday and lieked up $100,000,000 worth of groperty. In these few hours 776 buildings, most of them magnificent structures of stone and fron, were consumed as though they were built of wood. Twenty persons perished in the flames.

consumed as though they were built of wood. Twenty persons periabed in the flames.

The flue broke out in a large four-story granite store on the corner of Summer and Kingston etreets. Hefore the fire engines arrived on the scene the flames had communicated to the other holises in the vicinity and in less than twenty minutes the whole broad facades extending down Kingston and Summer streets were one sheep of the month of the distribution of the streets and the heat was so intense as to formans, and the heat was so intense as to formans, and the heat was so intense as to formans, and the thanes aproad with remarkable rapidity. The dremen struggled hereically but in vain. Barricades for their protection were pat up, but they maited before the flery element rike wax. So terribity intense became the heat after a while that it passed through the brick walls of adjoining buildings to the fronts of warehouses on the other sides of the streets, igniting and consuming the latter without any direct contact with flame.

About 1a m, attempts were made to stay, the progress of the flames by blowing up the buildings in its nathway with dynamite, but proved futtle, and the magnificent perion of the city bounded by Washington, Summer, Hedford, Water and Oliver streets burned to the water's edge.

The entire space occupied by the wholessied by goods dealers, woof merchants, boot and shoe, hide and leatner dealers, and clothing house, met load destruction. Not a woof house was left standing. The first total destruction of further washer and apparently indestructible commercial painces in America, sixty-flye acres.

hands were called to assist in unloading the local freight. To the great surprise of all, Station Agent Drobert called for one elephant. All was commotion at once, but the animal was safely landed on the platform and, word sent immediately to Messra. Somenschein & Valentine, the parties to whom the animal was oiled, to come and receive their freight. Somenschein repaired to the depot and was lost in admiration of the flow points of the animal, but when the freight bill was presented, which was about $800, refused to pay the same.

Word was at once sent to headquarters at Omaha to find out what was to be done.

In the meantume the clophant had broken out of the crate in which he had been conflied and had started up the principal street of the city. His first objective point was a livery stable, which fronted on the street, evidently in search of a thanksgiving dimer. From here he made a raid upon the front of Crawford & Draho's new brick block, smashing in the entire plate glass front. Crossing the street he entered the drug store of Thompson Brothers and demailshed one entire side of their elegant store building. His career of demolability was stoped here. The latter became rather afraid of their own moderation, and, to buy their pardon, at the cosming setting annulled the election of Arault, a royalist, against whom there were no real causes for discontent. This, by the way, is a favorite way of acting with the conortunists. For every step they make towards and moderate policy they take two towards and icalism. With regard to the invalidation of the election of Come Dillon, the case was different. Of a more complete character is the election at Clarancourt. The committee engaged on the question has so far not been able to come to any definite decision. An oninion which appears to obtain a large measure of support is that Juffrin's election is not quite suif-stactory or leval, but there is some slowness to formally move its invalidation owing to the fear that mother election would result in the return of Boulanger. Nothing will defeat fired in the race for the speakership at this stare but the diagnass of the members from the west, south and northwest at the application of the unit rule. This old time method of carrying conventions and creating artificial sentiment in favor of one cam was abandenced in New York stateyears ago. It mover thrives to any great extent in the republicant party and the attempt to bring it to the front as a factor in the present campaign has disgusted those mea who are in the most of thinking for themselves. But Senator Quay of Pennsylvania owes his own political prominence to his ability to compel others to how to his will be spite of their even individual inclinations. Senator Quay is the one man who is trying to correct the cutting Pennsylvania detectation into voting as no dictates, and the second of the correct the cutting Pennsylvania detectation into voting as no dictates, and the second of the correct the cutting Pennsylvania detectation into voting as no dictates, and the second of the cutting Pennsylvania detectation into voting as no dictates. man who is trying to correct the entire Pennsylvania defectation this voting as no dictates, and the chances are that he has been successful. The unit rule in New York is a scheme drat suggested by ex-Scuator Platt. He has not attempted to compel any of his followers to vote for liced. He is too admit a state-sman to try any such scheme. He knows that to try the operation body would be ruinguts and he has in consequence been quietly at work through his most trusted incumants all summer to bring about a unit policy of the members from New York he was therefore only incomany from New Yorkers that they should make their collections of the members from New Yorkers that they should make their collections on that the better policy would be to unite on some man. This plan has worked to a charm and the action of the New Yorkers tenight in deeding to support Mr. Reed was on y what every one knew last week would be the outcome.

Senator this seek, who arrived here yesterday, has given out the rice that it was to him that was due the unity of action on the purt of members from New York, but if Senator this cock had announced last spring that he wanted Reed elected the result might have never been spiled in New York, it would have head a contrary effect and instead of unity of action in the purt of members from New York, but if Senator this cock had announced last spring that he wanted Reed elected the result might have never been applied in New York, it would have been that the unit role would have never been applied in New York, it would have been that the unit role would have never been applied in New York, it would have been that the unit role would have been that the solid New England sumpy fed and the Canadian Pacific rallowers of the courty where the milience of the solid of the courty of the deed of the produ the reorganization plan. It has even been hinted that Gould is behind this movement and is picking up stock in both New York and Boston. Yesterday a special dispatch was received on Wall street which read as follows: "Maniputation of Missouri Pacific, Atchison and St. Louis & San Francisco is attracting attention and is generally credited to Gould, whose holdings of Atchison have been estimated as high as 20,000 shares. Although no stock appears in his same, a large amount has been franciscoring of the doubt and the control of the Atchison and St. Louis & San Francisco reads are to obtain the control of the Atchison and St. Louis & San Francisco reads are to obtain the control of the Atchison and St. Louis & San Francisco reads are to obtain the control of the Atchison and St. Louis & San Francisco reads are not been company in Wall street.
